Washington Funeral for Johnson

THE LATE PRESIDENT JOHNSON
(UPI TELEPHOTO)

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The body of former President Lyndon B. Johnson will be flown to Washington Wednesday for a full military ceremony. Thursday, his body will be returned to the Central Texas Hill country where he was reared and later retired, for burial in the family cemetery.

The funeral plans were announced today by a family spokesman.

Johnson, 64, who died Monday of a heart attack, will lie in state in Austin today in the Great Hall of his presidential library at the University of Texas campus.

The sudden death of Johnson leaves this country without a living former president for the first time since early in the century. His death comes almost a month after that of former president Harry S. Truman.

Wednesday morning, a presidential jet will fly Johnson's body from Austin to Washington, where the casket will proceed to the Capitol in a horse-drawn caisson in a cortege beginning at 1:20 p.m. EST.

A ceremony will be held at 2:30 p.m. in the Rotunda of the Capitol.

Afterward, Johnson's body will lie in state in the Rotunda until Thursday morning, when it will be taken to Washington's National City Christian Church for funeral services at 10 a.m. EST.

After the funeral, the casket will be flown back to Texas for final rites and burial at 3:30 p.m. CST in the family cemetery, not far from the LBJ Ranch.

"These plans represent the wishes of the family," said Tom Johnson, a close associate, but not a relative, of the former president both during and after LBJ's tenure in the White House.

Johnson said Mrs. Johnson will make up the list of passengers to accompany her and the former president's body on the presidential jet to Washington Wednesday.

The tall Texan who molded the "Great Society" programs and at the same time escalated what now has become the nation's longest war was stricken at his LBJ Ranch during an afternoon nap.

He called the ranch switchboard at 3:50 p.m. CST asking for help. Two minutes later Secret Service agents rushed into his room and found him on the floor beside his bed. He was pronounced dead 41 minutes later on arrival at San Antonio, where he was rushed by a private airplane.

Lady Bird was notified by two-way radio in her car a block from the LBJ Library in Austin, 60 miles from the ranch. She was flown by helicopter to San Antonio's Brooke Army Medical Center, arriving at the same time as the airplane bearing Johnson's body.

Johnson's death came just days before an expected peace agreement for Vietnam. It was criticism of the war that prompted Johnson to decide in 1968 to leave the White House instead of seeking a second full term.

LBJ was thrust into the presidency with the assassination of John F. Kennedy in a Dallas motorcade Nov. 22, 1963. He was elected to a full term the following year in a landslide over Sen. Barry M. Goldwater.

Johnson's two daughters, Luci Nugent and Lynda Robb, rushed to the LBJ Ranch in the central Texas hill country where Johnson was reared, to plan his funeral. The family cemetery is near his boyhood home on the ranch.

An Army spokesman at Brooke said Johnson died of coronary thrombosis. It was his fourth heart attack.

"President Johnson had severe coronary artery disease with complete occlusion of two of the three major arterial supplies to the heart," a family spokesman quoted doctors as saying. "The third major artery was about 60 per cent occluded."

Civil Rights leaders said Johnson did more for blacks than any American president since Abraham Lincoln. Nevertheless, his administration was marked by Negro unrest and racial resentment in the ghettos of the nation's cities.

But Johnson's "Great Society" programs that were successful included the strongest civil rights law since Reconstruction, Medicare — health care for the aged — and the War on Poverty.

A Nation Mourns LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by President Nixon, the nation paid tribute today to Lyndon B. Johnson as the president whose domestic achievements were overshadowed until his death by the war he couldn't end.

"No man had greater dreams for America than Lyndon Johnson," said Nixon of his predecessor in the White House. "Even as we mourn his death, we are grateful for his life, which did so much to make those dreams into realities."

Johnson's deeds matched his dreams of civil rights and social progress, said others in appraising the five-year administration of the president whose death stunned the capital Monday night.

In a refrain echoing through the appraisals by many of Johnson's associates, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said:

"As President, his brilliant leadership on the Civil Rights and the Voting Rights Act of 1965 have earned him a place in the history of civil rights alongside Abraham Lincoln.

"And his efforts to help the poor, the sick and the oppressed stand out as landmarks of America's concern for those too weak to help themselves."

Thrust into office by tragedy, Johnson coped first with the mounting racial turmoil of the mid-1960s, but watched the nation become more deeply rent as American soldiers died by the thousands in Vietnam.

Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who coalesced anti-war forces behind his surprisingly strong challenge to Johnson's expected bid for re-election by the Democratic party in 1968, said of the dead president:

"If he was to be faulted, it was not for lack of dedication or lack of commitment, but for taking upon himself or to himself too much of the burden and of the responsibilities of government."

On March 31, 1968, Johnson shocked the nation with the announcement that he would neither seek nor accept re-election.

Johnson's vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey, reflected on that day:

"He and Lady Bird, Luci and her husband came up to our apartment. He said 'could I talk to you alone?' Then he told me what he was going to do. He said 'I've done everything I could to try and end the war. I've tried the Pope, I've tried the Russians, I've tried the Poles, the French ... I'm going to make another supreme effort. Hubert, I want peace in Vietnam more than anything.'"

But Humphrey recalled that Johnson believed he could not bring the warring parties into peace negotiations unless he withdrew from the campaign and purged the bid of any political taint.

"I really have a feeling," Humphrey said in a late-night interview in his Senate office, "that as we bury President Johnson, that peace will come alive." He referred to the reportedly imminent signing of a peace agreement negotiated by Nixon's advisor, Henry Kissinger, and the North Vietnamese.

Johnson's defense secretary, Robert S. McNamara, said: "Whatever history's verdict may be on the Johnson role in Vietnam, I have no doubt that history will record President Johnson's actions to redress the discriminations which had been suffered by the poor, the blacks and the disadvantaged as one of the most important advances by our society in this century."

Describing himself and his wife as heartsick over Johnson's death, former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, a Johnson protege, said: "The world has lost a great leader and president but we have also lost a beloved friend. All our adult lives have been intertwined with those of President Johnson, Mrs. Johnson and their family."

Is Peace Pot Boiling Happily?

PARIS (UPI) — A beaming Henry A. Kissinger met for nearly four hours today with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho and then flew home to report to President Nixon, presumably carrying the draft cease-fire agreement to end the Vietnam War.

Whether the agreement was complete or Kissinger or Tho would have to meet again was not announced. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird hinted Monday that an agreement could come by Wednesday and reports from Saigon today gave further signs that the cease-fire announcement might be imminent.

Kissinger declined to make any formal statement after the talks or at Orly Airport but was in a jovial mood as he posed for photographers. He and the Communist negotiators had parted with broad smiles and handshakes in an atmosphere of cordiality.

At one stage, a newsman at Orly field asked him to say something in French. "I don't want to spoil French-American relations," he quipped. He then headed straight out to his plane waiting on the tarmac.

The blue and white presidential jet took off at 3:25 p.m. (9:25 a.m. EST) and was due in Washington about 5:45 p.m. EST.

There were rumors in Saigon and Paris that Nixon might speak to the nation but there was no confirmation from the White House and the major networks said there had been no request for time tonight.

Kissinger met with Tho for three hours and 45 minutes, then they emerged from the conference site on the Avenue Kleber smiling and shaking hands all around. There were more smiles when they posed for official photographs afterwards of what could have been their last negotiating session.

No further meetings were announced.

White House sources said Kissinger carried authorization from President Nixon to initial a peace settlement.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird hinted that a peace signing may come as early as Saturday following an Indo-China tour. Saigon government sources said Haig had secured would be released, Laird said nothing more could be said until "after Wednesday."

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met for 25 minutes today in Saigon with President Nguyen Van Thieu but the subject of the discussion was not disclosed. The two have conferred at least once daily since White House emissary Gen. Alexander M. Haig left Saturday following an Indo-China tour. Saigon government sources said Haig had secured Thieu's approval "in principle" of the U.S.-Hanoi peace pact reached earlier this month by Kissinger and Tho.

U.S. and North Vietnamese experts on law and language, who have been meeting six days a week since Jan. 2, held a 12-hour session in Paris Monday—their longest meeting by far. It is believed they have been putting into final written form in both English and Vietnamese the Kissinger-Tho compromise agreement.

Red Terrorism Predicted After Signing

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military officers predict Communist forces in South Vietnam will revert to guerrilla tactics, terror and assassination after a cease-fire.

Influenced by intelligence reports and past history, these American officers expect a cease-fire at best to be only a pause in the long war between the Vietnamese for control of the South.

They doubt that an international supervisory organization will be able to prevent this happening, even with a police force of thousands.

Henry Kissinger said recently that the United States aims to avoid ending the war "in such a way that it is just a beginning of another round of conflict. But outgoing Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird sounded pessimistic about a lasting peace in Vietnam when he told his final news conference last Friday:

"I hope and pray there will not be any killing in Vietnam, or Laos, or Cambodia, or in Southeast Asia, but as a practical man I cannot assure you of that."

"I am not promising anybody that, under any kind of agreement, because I know the history of Southeast Asia ... I am talking about every possible kind of agreement," Laird said. In private, American military officers are even more skeptical.

cal. They view the continued presence of North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam during the formal cease-fire as potentially fatal to peace.

There is nagging worry too about the quality of some South Vietnamese leadership, particularly in certain divisional and regimental commands. And there is no way of telling how the South Vietnamese army will stand up without the support of U.S. air power and American advisers.

While these doubts about the South Vietnamese persist, American military officers say they have no doubts the Communists are preparing for a long-haul military effort, probably involving a switch in tactics from large-unit battles to guerrilla-type warfare.

As recently as last week, these officers learned of orders from the Central Office for South Vietnam, which directs Viet Cong activities, calling for increased efforts to interfere with pacification and to develop underground agents in government-controlled hamlets.

In recent weeks, the North Vietnamese were said to be moving to set up a logistics command and headquarters in northern Tay Ninh Province from which Saigon and the heavily populated area around the capital could be threatened. South Vietnamese troops in recent days appear to have been attempting to checkmate this move by driving North Vietnamese regiments back from the base area.

There are presently 46 high school students attending BOCES for that purpose, and there have been 80 that have shown "serious interest" for changes and upgrading to the next year, he noted.

He also reported that the computer assisted instruction terminal at the high school had proved to be a "valuable adjunct" to the learning process, and recommended re-submission of the use of the Skidmore nature sanctuary near Millbrook.

A letter from J. David Schmidt, chairman of the Rhinebeck Recreation Commission, requested that the gates be left open after school hours and on weekends for children those students participating to use, and asked if some discussion might be had on joint construction of tennis courts for the community.

Steeves said that the gates are now left open, and Dr. maintained.

UBA Petitions... 'Response Excellent'

TOWN OF ULSTER The Ulster Businessmen Association calling for highway improvements to ease traffic congestion for their customers along Ulster Avenue Mall are reportedly receiving excellent response from area residents.

Bernie Singer, chairman of the Association's committee which is spearheading the effort for highway improvements, told The Freeman today that many hundreds of signatures have been collected on the petitions.

Singer pointed out that the effort to collect the signatures is continuing, and thus no accurate record of the exact number collected is as yet available. The petitions are available in numerous stores along the two-mile stretch of road which was designated as Ulster Avenue Mall by Ulster Town Board action in 1971.

The petitions are addressed to Governor Rockefeller, Raymond T. Schuler, commissioner of the State Department of Transportation, State Senator Edwyn E. Mason and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell.

Copies of the petitions will be presented to Schuler Thursday night when he is scheduled to speak before the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce at their annual dinner at the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

Singer pointed out that signatures will continue to be collected after Thursday.

The Association decided to take its case to the public after five years of intensive but fruitless efforts to obtain the highway improvements.

The Ulster Businessmen Association, Ulster Town Board, Town of Ulster Planning Board, and the Ulster County Planning Board. The sole responsibility for the present improvements rests, however, with the State Department of Transportation.

The petition notes, "this requested improvement has already been planned, surveyed, mapped and promised by the state for many years, but has not yet been accomplished, notwithstanding the continued imperative immediate need."

The petition goes on to state, "We respectfully demand that this improvement be undertaken before any other state roads proposed be built in the Town of Ulster."

Rhinebeck Trustee Opens Field

RHINEBECK While the legal deadline for filing petitions for village office is Feb. 27, Rhinebeck Trustee Francis Kinney has given interested candidates a clear field in announcing his intention not to seek another term.

Kinney, who has served for the past four years on the board under Mayor Peter F. Sipperley, cited "frustration and aggravation" as his primary reason for departing the post.

And those who have attended meetings of the village board on a regular basis for the past four years have been very much aware of personal differences between the mayor and Kinney, largely based upon the question of "who controls the police department?"

In a prepared statement, Kinney said, in part: "My decision is based upon not seeing any change, now or in the future, concerning the responsibilities of the village trustee's position that I have occupied for the last four years, and I cannot see accepting another possible four years on the village board with the almost certain frustration and aggravation that will come from the lack of accomplishment because of the seemingly undefinable nature of the trustee's authority and responsibility."

Kinney's assigned task as a trustee since 1969 has been chairman of the Police Committee. The mayor is legally the chief of police in a village the size of Rhinebeck.

Verbal clashes have increased over the past year, with Kinney often taking the position that a complete study, and possible overhaul, of the police operations was necessary and Sipperley seemingly content with the present methods of operation.

While some suggestions had been made to combine the village police department with town constables, the village has been augmenting its two-man fulltime police operation with deputies from the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department on a part time basis for several years.

And Mayor Sipperley has noted that with the state police only two miles to the south, the village has had adequate police protection.

The Village of Red Hook, similar in size, has for years chosen to go with two fulltime patrolmen and a half dozen part time patrolmen, usually men moonlighting with other jobs.

But Kinney has stated that the real problem is a lack of leadership in the police department and, as recently as the January meeting of the village board, asked for an "executive session" to iron out what he considered to be problems. The mayor at that time said he saw no need for such a meeting.

One applicant for Kinney's post has declared himself—Dr. Simon Kleeger, who has served on the Zoning Board of Appeals for eight years.

He has stated interest in the construction of a "community center," which is being studied by the Starr Institute board of trustees and several other Rhinebeck residents at present.

Dr. Kleeger has maintained a dentistry practice in Rhinebeck for some 20 years and is a member of the Starr Institute board.

Over Decision by Supreme Court

Anti-Abort Forces Reeling Under Impact

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Anti-abortion forces, who once were hopeful of winning their case before the legislature again this year, were reeling today under the impact of a U.S. Supreme Court decision that throws out all abortion laws less liberal than New York's.

"This is devastating," said Edward J. Golden of Troy, chairman of the New York State Right to Life Committee. He said his group would continue the anti-abortion fight, but that he was at a loss to know how to do so.

Assembly Speaker Perry Duryea, R-Montauk, said the court's ruling means that any attempt to repeal the state's liberal abortion law this year would be "futile."

The sudden new turn in what had been expected to be one of the major issues before the 1973 legislature was the major development at the Capitol Monday. In other actions:

—The Assembly passed legislation that would lift the current requirement that sets a minimum premiums for group life insurance premiums, a bill that would guarantee to women the opportunity to apply for appointment to a police department, and a constitutional amendment that would allow a defendant to waive indictment by a grand jury. All were sent to the Senate.

—The Senate passed a resolution calling on Gov. Rockefeller to proclaim January as Polka Month, and put off action on four other minor bills on its calendar.

—Gov. Rockefeller held a joint news conference with three Harlem ministers who endorsed his proposal for mandatory life sentences for drug pushers.

—The Assembly and Senate insurance committees met jointly to work on a no-fault automobile insurance bill, but came to no agreement.

The Supreme Court's decision from opponents of abortion. Supporters of the current law said the court had vindicated their position.

Under the state's present law, enacted three years ago, abortions are permissible through the 24th week of pregnancy. The old law, which was revived by the legislature last year but vetoed by Gov. Rockefeller, allowed abortion only to save the life of the mother.

The nation's high court ruled 7-2 that prohibiting abortion violates the woman's right to privacy, and that the state would be justified in doing so only if it were necessary for the mother's health. Only after the first six months, the court added, is the operation hazardous enough that the state would be justified in banning it.

Golden and the right-to-life group issued a statement saying "Our sentiments at this hour are saddened not only for those unborn infants who will never taste birth, but also for our society that has soured with permissiveness."

The only prominent abortion foe who offered a new course of action was Sen. James H. Donovan, R-Chadwick, who said he would introduce a resolution urging Congress to pass a constitutional amendment overturning the court's ruling. "What an interesting breed of humanity we Americans have become!" declared Donovan.

"Preserve our wildlife! Save our environment! Conserve our natural resources! Murder our unborn children!"

Terence Cardinal Cook of New York issued a statement declaring that "seven men have made a tragic, utilitarian judgment regarding who shall live and who shall die."

Assemblywoman Constance Cook, R-Ithaca, a supporter of the liberal law, expressed "enormous, just enormous relief" that the issue will not occupy the legislature this year.

Deputy Assembly Minority Leader Albert Blumenthal, D-Manhattan, noted one major potential impact of the ruling on New York—a reduction in business at abortion clinics.

"No longer will it be necessary for residents of other states to travel to New York for help," he said, praising the decision.

Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson, R-Binghamton, who voted for the present law, issued a statement saying "the moral issue remains and those who oppose abortion must be afforded every opportunity to exercise their own right of conscience in this matter."

Jailed Without Bail

NEW YORK (AP) — Four young Muslim gunmen were being held without bail today following their arraignment on charges of murdering a policeman during a weekend shootout and seize at a Brooklyn sporting goods store.

Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold took charge of the case Monday, beginning the presentation of evidence before a grand jury and successfully arguing in Brooklyn Criminal Court for denial of bail.

Three of the men, Salih Ali Abdullah, 25; Dawd Abdullah R-Rahim, 21, and Shulab Abdul Raheem, 23, appeared in court behind a cordon of a dozen uniformed officers. The fourth, Yusef Abdul Almussadiq, 22, was arraigned in Kings County Hospital.

Almussadiq was wounded in the initial shootout with police at John & Al's Sports shop in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn. He was reported in fair condition after surgery for an abdominal wound.

Gold charged all four with murder, attempted murder, possession of dangerous weapons, assault, kidnapping and robbery. The complaint said they had taken $350 in cash and various weapons in the robbery that was thwarted by a silent alarm.

It also charged that they held 10 hostages. One was freed in exchange for a doctor's services, and the other nine escaped when the co-owner of the store led them out an abandoned stairway while the gunmen were diverted.

Defense attorney Gerald Lefcourt told Judge Robert Haft that the three who appeared in court had been spat upon by police officers after they were taken to the 90th Precinct stationhouse following their surrender Sunday afternoon.

President Robert McKiernan of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, a rank-and-file police union, called for prosecution that could lead to execution for the fatal shooting of Patrolman Stephen R. Gilroy.

"Will society stand beside its policemen when they are attacked and murdered?" McKiernan asked outside of court. "Or will society break and run from the battlefield and leave us there all alone? All of us await the answer."

Under New York State criminal law, they could get the death penalty for killing a policeman. However, District Attorney Gold noted a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling that capital punishment is cruel.

Among those participating in the conference with Duryea and Anderson were Senate Insurance Committee Chairman John Dunne of Garden City, Assembly Insurance Committee Chairman John McCarthy of Huntington Station, and Senate Judiciary Chairman Bernard Gordon of Peekskill.

Gordon sponsored the no-fault insurance bill in the Senate last year that was soundly defeated. The Senate approved another insurance bill, supported by trial lawyers that died in Assembly committee.

The leaders this year are trying to reach consensus on one bill to present to the rank and file for approval.

No-Fault... Lower Premiums Possible

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — If and when it is proposed in this year's legislature, the no-fault automobile insurance bill may include a forced reduction in insurance premiums.

This was disclosed Monday by Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea of Montauk after a meeting with Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson of Montauk and some legislative committee chairmen.

"It was the feeling in our conference for up to a 20 percent cut in premiums," Duryea said.

The meeting was called to continue to work out specifics of the no-fault auto insurance bill and many of the proposals brought up in the private session were discussed in closed conferences with majority Republican senators and assemblymen.

Among those participating in the conference with Duryea and Anderson were Senate Insurance Committee Chairman John Dunne of Garden City, Assembly Insurance Committee Chairman John McCarthy of Huntington Station, and Senate Judiciary Chairman Bernard Gordon of Peekskill.

Gordon sponsored the no-fault insurance bill in the Senate last year that was soundly defeated. The Senate approved another insurance bill, supported by trial lawyers that died in Assembly committee.

The leaders this year are trying to reach consensus on one bill to present to the rank and file for approval.

"We don't want any false starts," said Duryea. Still at issue in discussions so far, say sources, is the basic medical benefits for the injured person, the basic benefits for property damage, and the minimum amount for damages before lawsuits are permitted. In the purest form of no-fault automobile insurance, an insurance company would pay benefits to a policyholder in an accident, regardless of fault. The intention is to speed payments to accident victims and to ease court congestion. Trial lawyers want to retain the privilege of lawsuits for damages. Under their proposal, the victims in an auto accident could sue in court if damages are above a certain point, say $200.

5,000 Icelanders Are Evacuated

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — An armada of fishing boats and planes evacuated 5,000 Icelanders early today from a small island off the southeast coast after a volcano on the island erupted for the first time in history.

By dawn the lava had reached the outskirts of Vestmannaeyjar, the only town on the island of Heymaey. But by then only 300 of the 5,300 islanders remained to be taken off.

The sea around Heymaey was lit up like a busy street by the lights of the hundreds of fishing boats the government rushed to the island 75 miles southeast of Reykjavik.

Ashore the lava had not reached the houses of Vestmannaeyjar yet, but several were ablaze from the heat of the flow.

The islanders drove their livestock and pets to the harbor and the airstrip in hopes of getting them away. There were no casualties reported and no panic.

One islander, Jon Stefansson, said he was getting up to go fishing at 2 a.m. when he heard "terrible noises."

"Then I heard a siren from the fire station and thought there must be a fire somewhere in town," he continued. "The volcano just didn't enter my mind. But when I looked out of the window, it was plain what had happened."

Women, children and hospital patients were flown out despite a rain of hot ash falling on the airstrip. The other residents before the flow moved toward the harbor at Vestmannaeyjar might be closed by the oozing lava, but this danger did not materialize.

Vestmannaeyjar is only 150 yards from Heigafell, the volcano that had not erupted since the Vikings discovered Iceland in 864 A.D. But the first outpouring of lava flowed away from the town and into the Atlantic, and it was some time before the flow moved toward the houses.

Ships of Iceland's large fishing fleet and its five coastal patrol boats were sent to the island. All buses in Reykjavik were commandeered and dispatched to Thorlaksheof, on the southern coast where the rescue armada was to land the evacuees.

The eruption was preceded by a small earthquake Monday. Then during the night a fissure 2,000 to 3,000 yards long split open and began spewing out lava and ash.

Volcanoes are comparatively common on Iceland.

GM Recalls

DETROIT (UPI)—General Motors Monday announced it was recalling 3.7 million 1971 and 1972 full-sized Chevrolets, Buicks, Oldsmobiles and Pontiacs to install a shield that will prevent stones from lodging in the steering mechanism.

It was the second largest recall in history, both of them by GM. The other involved 6.7 million Chevrolets in which restraints were added in case engine mounts snap.

In the latest recall, GM said cars without shields could pick up stones "under very unusual circumstances" which could cause interference with steering control.

There have been 96 reports of incidents where this allegedly occurred, GM said. Twenty-three of these reports involved accidents in which 12 injuries were reported.

Muzzling the Press

Journalists are fond of trotting out Thomas Jefferson's famous statement:

"Were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."

Being human, they tend to ignore something else he said:

"The man who never looks into a newspaper is better informed than he who reads them, inasmuch as he who knows nothing is nearer the truth than he whose mind is filled with falsehoods and errors."

These thoughts are as relevant today as when they were first expressed. They reflect the ambivalent, love-hate attitude the public has, and always has had, toward the press.

It may be significant, though, that the first statement was made before the formation of the Union and the adoption of the Bill of Rights, and before Jefferson as third president became a target of the sometimes scurrilous editorial criticism of his time.

Journalism has matured greatly since Jefferson's day, as has America itself. Nevertheless, the question of freedom of the press is a more burning one than at almost any other time in the nation's history.

Perhaps the most extreme rhetorical attack on the press to date is that of the president of the Fraternal Order of Police in Cleveland, who advocates government licensing of newspapers as a means of "guaranteeing accuracy and fairness."

The strangest official view of the role of the press in a free society has to be that of Clay Whitehead, White House director of telecommunications policy.

If people don't like President Nixon, he says, they have the recourse of not voting for him. But what can they do about what he claims is a "concentration of power" in a few newspapers and television networks?

The policeman has no doubt experienced what he considers unfair treatment at the hands of the press, as has the much-publicized Whitehead as a member of the government's executive branch.

But this, as Harry S. Truman would have agreed, is one of the hazards of being a public servant, and as television commentator David Brinkley has remarked, there are a lot of countries in the world where the politicians have muzzled the press but he knows of no country where the press has muzzled the politicians.

The threat to press freedom is more than rhetorical, however. In America today reporters are going to jail for refusal to divulge the source of stories, even though in no case has the public interest been compromised or wrong-doers protected by a reporter's silence. Indeed, it has been just the opposite.

Current record-holder is Los Angeles Times reporter William T. Farr, who spent 48 days in prison on a contempt citation arising out of a story about the 1970 Charles Manson trial and who calls his open-ended sentence a form of "psychological barbarity" we do not mete out to our worst criminals.

Ultimately, of course, the press is really only as free as those who make it their profession are themselves free of bias or self-interest and are motivated by dedication to the public good.

While in this regard there will never be perfection, the courageous behavior of reporters like Farr is proof that the highest ideals of journalism are being given more than mere lip service.

This accords with an earlier survey made by the National Crime Commission, which found that the amount of personal injury crime was almost twice that reported to the police and that property crime was more than twice that reported.

Many victims failed to notify the police because they did not think the police could do anything about it, or they did not want to harm the offender, often a relative or friend, for fear of reprisal.

No wonder there is so much crime and so little of it goes unreported to the police. The victims are soft on the offenders. Crime can't be eliminated unless victims and police cooperate to stop it.

WASHINGTON — There is increasing pressure on Congress to throw open its closed doors, air out its smoke-filled rooms and let the public observe its inner workings. But some secretive Senators, who don't like the public watching over their shoulders, are digging in their heels.

In an earlier column, we told how Senator John Tower, R-Tex., had fought against opening the doors of the Senate Banking Committee. The bantam Texan has been a stooge for the banks in the back-rooms, and he would like to continue hiding his shenanigans from the public.

From the secret transcript, here is the story of how Tower maneuvered to keep the committee meetings closed:

The move to open the doors was made by Senators William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Robert Packwood, R-Ore. Packwood tried to reassure those who preferred secrecy by telling them how the open-door policy had worked in the Oregon legislature.

"Most of the press didn't bother to come in, very few of the public or lobbyists," Packwood recalled. "And you remove the one stigma or onus that is always thrown at us about secrecy, and really lose nothing by opening them up."

But Tower objected. "We have to consider the effect of our decision on other committees of the Senate . . . he protested. "In that it does involve broad Senate policies, we should defer action on it. Therefore, I move to table it."

Tower's motion would have had the effect of killing the open-door proposal, but not a single Senator gave him verbal support. Later, he returned to the attack. "This is a matter that involves radical departure from Senate policy," he huffed.

Tower's Tactics

Again, he asked for tabling, and again, no one spoke in support. But Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., signaled the clerk to call the roll. Tower lost, nine to six.

But the tough, little Texan refused to accept the majority decision. "We shouldn't vote on a matter of this kind today," he snorted. "Therefore, I would probably keep the committee in session for some time today."

Because he had been unable to pigeonhole the Proxmire-Packwood proposal, in other words, he was prepared to keep talking to prevent it from coming to a vote.

Packwood tried to pacify him. "What do you propose, John?" asked the Senator from Oregon.

But Tower would not be appeased. "I can see all sorts of Pandora's boxes rushed into voting on the matter today," he growled.

Proxmire conceded that Tower could keep them there "until we are exhausted" and, therefore, tried to pin him down. "Will you agree (to) vote in two weeks, a week, something?" asked Proxmire.

The Senator from Texas shook his head. "I am not prepared to agree to a time certain . . ." he said. "I am the guy that is going to get the bad press on it, get in the Washington Post tomorrow morning, and so I am willing to take the heat on it for awhile . . ."

"How does this committee reach a majority vote?" pleaded Proxmire. "I have been on this committee 16 years, and this is the first time that I recall a threatened filibuster." "Oh, now, Bill," pooh-poohed Tower.

But Proxmire barked back: "Well, it is," in fact, he called it a "bold and barefaced" threat to block the vote with a filibuster.

Thus, the meeting adjourned without a final vote, and the Senate Banking Committee's doors remained closed.

Footnote: In the secret roll-call to table the open-door proposal were Senators John Sparkman, D-Ala., Harrison Williams, D-N.J., Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, Bill Brock, R-Tenn., and Robert Taft, R-Ohio. Those who joined Proxmire and Packwood were Senators Tom McIntyre, D-N.H., Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., William Hathaway, D-Me., Joseph Biden, D-Del., Edward Brooke, R-Mass., J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., and Lowell Weicker, R-Conn.

Watergate Diary

We reported recently that one of the Watergate defendants, Eugenio Martinez, had kept a diary, which the government prosecutors had decided not to introduce into the trial. Quoting sources who had access to the diary, we said it used code names to identify Martinez' contacts but provided an "excellent record" of the Watergate operation.

We have now had access to the white, leather-bound diary which indeed identifies contacts by initials and code names but does not provide a record of the Watergate operation.

Only five pages of the diary contain entries. Most interesting: the date 6-21-72 was scribbled three times in different pens, with initials following each date. This was three days after Martinez was arrested with four companions inside Democratic headquarters at the Watergate. The initials were R.O., H.P. and M.C. It may be merely coincidence, but three names mentioned in connection with the Watergate affair are former Nixon campaign officials: Robert Odle, Herbert Porter and Watergate defendant James McCord.

Cooperation Needed

WASHINGTON — The inauguration of a president has always been the occasion for celebrations and festivities, abounding with the expectation that the man who had won on election day in November now would be able to bring to the people relief from their worries.

Looking back over 14 inaugurations, one is struck by how the introduction of radio and television has made people generally feel that they are a part of the event. It was only in the 1950s that nationwide television brought live telecasts of the inaugural ceremonies into homes across the land. This sense of intimacy has resulted in a greater interest in national and international affairs.

But, even with the additional space given in the newspapers and time allotted on radio and TV for the story of what the government does from day to day, there is nevertheless a big gap. Some of the most important activities of the federal government are reported in a fragmentary way. Many people, of course, become prejudiced by the political speeches which tell them that an administration is either performing miracles or initiating policies that have no regard for the welfare of the people.

As the means of communication have expanded and more and more attention has been given by special groups to what government can do, there has been gradually growing a desire for governmental action not only in stimulating the economy but improving the life of the nation.

Today, for example, the federal government is involved in trying to assure good health care for everybody. A half-century ago such assistance wasn't even suggested. The fight against heart disease and cancer, the effort to make sure that medicines are properly manufactured and administered and the programs which provide financial help so that all citizens can get medical services — these things are relatively new in the evolution of government. But they are typical of the trend, as the federal government, along with the state, city and county governments, recognizes its responsibilities for the welfare of the people.

Every inaugural day seems to be filled with more hope and confidence that the new president — or the incumbent in his second term — will be able to provide, by legislation and expenditure of public funds, programs that will make life in America better and better.

While political parties perform a service the presentation of rival views, there are times when teamwork becomes essential. President Nixon, as he began his first term in 1969, took over the burden of the Vietnam war, which had been a difficult question during two preceding administrations. But instead of obtaining cooperation from the opposite party, Mr. Nixon has frequently been subjected to criticisms. These have encouraged our adversaries abroad to believe that the American people were not united behind their president on foreign policy.

The Democrats still are in control of both houses of Congress, and the Republican president may continue to have the same troubles he had in his first term. What Mr. Nixon would have appreciated was backing from the Democrats in Congress so that the Vietnam war could have been brought to an end. For the cost of the military operations in Indo-China has been substantial.

It might be asked whether, on inauguration day in 1973, members of both the House and the Senate were willing to pledge themselves to support the President, who has been struggling to terminate the war. He has been hindered by the enemy's belief that, since Congress was not standing behind him, it would not be necessary to make a peace agreement.

Inauguration day this year could mark a great step forward for the United States in its endeavor to bring peace to the world. If Mr. Nixon had the wholehearted cooperation of both houses of Congress, foreign governments would have more respect for America's effort to perform a humanitarian act — the salvation of a small country whose sovereignty had been threatened by an aggressor which was aided by a constant flow of supplies from Red China and the Soviet Union.

Inauguration day could have been one of solemn dedication, not to the considerations of party politics, but to the greater and more important objective — to persuade other governments that they, too, have the responsibility to avoid the maneuvers and devious methods by which the independence of small countries is threatened and the risks of war constantly increased.

Martin Nolan Says

McGovern Akin to Poe's Raven

WASHINGTON — In Edgar Allan Poe's "The Raven," the grim, prophetic bird sat upon the hero's chamber door, chanting "Nevermore."

During the similarly tortured reverie of many Americans at inaugural time, an unfeathered symbol of America's malaise and unfulfilled yearnings — another perch, the lectern at St. Catherine's College at Oxford University in England.

Sen. George McGovern told students about his doubts of America's future. His speech, flavored with some sour grapes, also made specific suggestions about what Congress should do about its "timid and depleted" powers.

Besides pragmatic proposals, McGovern's own confession of 1972 bore a staccato cadence, a chant that his ideals and those of millions of others would be honored nevermore.

"Just why the American electorate gave the present administration such an overwhelming mandate in November remains something of a mystery to me. I do not expect ever to find a fully satisfactory answer."

"I firmly believed throughout 1971 that the major hurdle to winning the Presidency was winning the Democratic nomination. I believed that any reasonable Democrat could defeat President Nixon."

"I now think that no one could have defeated him in 1972. And I am not certain that the Democratic Congress will hold him in check for the next four years. I am convinced that the United States is closer to one-man rule than at any time in our history — and this paradoxically by a President who is not popular."

In his speech Sunday night,

McGovern did not dwell on his own shortcomings, but was nonetheless eloquent in denouncing other American institutions. The media, he said, "have yielded subtly but substantially . . . there are, of course, brave reporters, newspapers and television channels ready to take the heat; but there are countless others who have left the kitchen for a more comfortable uncritical existence in the antechamber of this Administration. They are trying to get along by going along."

McGovern reserves special scorn for "some liberal intellectuals, traditionally the most tireless group in America. Today, you can hear such liberals saying government cannot make any real difference for good in the lives of people . . . and they are reluctant to assume the imperfect but important march interrupted by the war. Instead they seem almost happy to fulfill the prophecy of W. R. Inge, the Gloomy Dean, that he who would marry the spirit of the age soon finds himself a widower. And they seem to draw a curious personal consolation from the evidence that my appeals to the idealism and morality of America were rejected by the majority of Americans."

McGovern's brooding clearly evokes Poe's victim:

"Ah, distinctly I remember it was in the bleak December And each separate dying ember wrought its ghost upon the floor."

No one spent a bleaker December than George McGovern, but he seems to sympathize with the voters who rejected him:

"I think they did believe that I would do what I said, and they were afraid. Many Americans looked back at the debris of the last decade, and they feared that once again, they were about to face a hard effort and harvest nothing from it . . . Americans are desperately anxious to believe in a transcendent, almost mystical purpose. But they are also skeptical now of any such summons unless there are signs of progress already there."

The Senator's proposals are unmystical — ending, seniority, establishing a congressional budget bureau and foreign policy agency.

Maybe McGovern will be ignored by a Congress which "nodded, nearly napping" ignoring as did Poe's hero, "someone gently rapping, rapping at my chamber door."

New Statistics About Drugs for Pregnant Women

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's hard to believe a drug given to a pregnant woman could act like a time bomb by causing cancer years later, and not in the woman but in her then unborn child if it happened to be developing into a female.

Even some scientists have found it hard to believe. But the statistical and circumstantial evidence is tightening around the drug, diethylstilbestrol DES and the authoritative word is that countless young women between 12 and 25 years old are "at risk."

The risk resulted from pregnancies which were preserved against the threat of miscarriage by DES or chemically related drugs.

DES is a synthetic estrogen, the basic hormone of femininity. In the late 1940s it came into wide medical use as a means of maintaining pregnancies. The size of the "at risk" population is unknown. The first associations with the genital tract cancer appeared in the late 1960s. The danger flags have been flying in medical circles since then and presumably DES use in pregnancy has stopped.

The authoritative recommendation is that of Dr. Arthur L. Herbst and his associates in keeping a registry of the specific cancer at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston. More than 200 doctors in all parts of the country have now registered 91 cases.

The patients were 8 to 25 years old. The pregnancy histories of 66 of the 91 mothers are known. Forty-nine received DES or a related synthetic estrogen. Nine received drugs which have not been identified. Only eight received no drugs.

The malignancy in female offspring can be a virulent form of cancer with an 18 per cent mortality and an additional 8 per cent recurrence rate. Herbst said in his report to the New England Journal of Medicine. He emphasized the tentativeness of this "preliminary data."

Dress Code Is Argued

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Man, do we have a problem! About 100 junior and senior high school students in Oklahoma need your help. Ours is a small-town school and the school board is so old fashioned it isn't even funny. They set up a dress code for girls saying we can't wear our dresses any shorter than three inches above our knees. And they even tell the boys how long to wear their hair. They can't have it any longer than their collars.

Abby, everyone is so uptight here they are failing in their work. Do you honestly believe that a person's dress affects his behavior?

IN JAIL IN MULDROW, OKLA.

DEAR IN: I hate to let you down, but serious studies show that a person's dress does affect his behavior. Kids who dress like they're going to a hayride are more inclined to horse around.

DEAR ABBY: I came up with what I thought was a brilliant idea in the way of New Year's resolutions for married folks.

The husband should make up a list of resolutions for his wife to follow, and the wife should make up a list of resolutions for her husband to follow. For example, he might have me resolve never to ask him to pick up his way home from the store, because that's my job and I have all day to do it. And I might have him resolve always to call me and tell me if he knows he'll be late getting home.

My husband told me he thought it was a very foolish idea and I should forget it.

Personally, I can't see what anyone would have to lose except some bad habits that irritated the spouse. On Jan. 1, both parties would sit down together, exchange lists and bargain. You know, "Okay, I'll agree to Number One on your list if you'll agree to Number Two on mine."

Doing the Right Thing

Dear Mrs. Post:

My son is getting married in March. I had planned on giving a cocktail party for month. My husband thinks it him and his fiancé next would be in bad taste for me to send out invitations reading, "We cordially invite you to a cocktail party in honor of Mary and John." He feels the guests would be obliged to bring gifts. This is not my purpose. However, I don't want to cause anyone to be embarrassed.

What is your advice on this situation?

Mrs. Ridel

Dear Mrs. Ridel:

An invitation to a reception to "Meet Jane Smith" or "In honor of Jane and John" carries no obligation. I would suggest that you have your party and at the top of the invitation write either, "In honor of . . ." or, if the bride-to-be has not met your friends, "To meet . . ." This is in no way a shower or an engagement party, so

What do you think of this idea, Abby?

MRS. T. IN JOPLIN, MO.

DEAR MRS. T.: I think it's so good, since it missed New Year's, any Monday morning would be a good starting date.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote, "You will always be your mother's daughter regardless of WHO your father's wife is." You are wrong. It should be "WHOM" because the entire phrase "who your father's wife is" is the object of the preposition "of."

Should your experts on the English language prove me incorrect, I bow to the fact that language is a living thing and as such is always changing.

WIFE AND TEACHER

DEAR WIFE AND TEACHER: Don't teach the above, because you are wrong. "Who" is correct, because it is the subject of the clause, not the object.

DEAR ABBY: With all the publicity about breast cancer, I have yet to read one line stating that it's possible for men to have breast cancer. They can, I should know because I did.

I discovered two lumps in the region of my right breast. I went to a doctor and found that, indeed, I had breast cancer.

It's been a year since my surgery, and I continue to be "clean" simply because I saw the doctor in time. I am 48.

T.J., HOLLYWOOD, CAL.

DEAR T. J.: I, for one, learned something new today. Thanks for writing.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply write to ABBY: Box No. 59709, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped self-addressed envelope please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069 for Abby's booklet, "How to write Letters for All Occasions."

NURSE-TEACHER DAY — The Department of School Nurses of the National Education Association has designated January 26 as SCHOOL NURSE-TEACHER DAY and in conjunction with the occasion, Mayor Francis R. Koenig has designated January 26 as School Nurse-Teacher Day in the City of Kingston. Mayor Koenig asks all citizens to recognize the work and dedication of these people who help children mature to healthy, useful adulthood. School Nurse-Teachers have been employed since 1913. In 1917, there were 100 school nurse-teachers and by 1972 there were more than 2,000. As a member of the school health team, she uses her expertise to promote the individual's ability to protect and maintain his health, to adjust to his environment, and develop health behavior which will benefit him, his family and his community. # Boxing World Has New Heavyweight Champ

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — George Foreman, the bull-strong Hayward, Calif., power puncher who loves America, is the new world heavyweight champion and the only question now is who he'll make his first defense against — Muhammad Ali or the man he wiped out here, Joe Frazier.

Unburdened by any return contract, the 24-year-old, unbeaten Foreman is perfectly free today to pick and choose. And he may do exactly that, announcing his choice at a news conference here today.

Frazier might not be there. He has an appointment with a neurologist. The former champion's head was pummeled severely by the 6-foot-3, 217½-pound Foreman until Referee Arthur Mercante mercifully stopped the contest at 1:35 of the second round.

Foreman, who made headlines five years ago when he waved the American flag after winning the heavyweight gold medal at the Mexico City Olympic Games, made even a bigger name for himself at National Stadium Monday night when he knocked Frazier down six times to capture boxing's prize plum before 36,000 in-person fans and 100 million others who saw the fight on closed circuit TV transmitted via satellite world-wide.

"God gave me intelligence and I knew I would walk out of the ring as the new heavyweight champion," said Foreman, whose feet never touched the ground on the way to the dressing room as hundreds of jubilant Jamaicans carried their new hero on their shoulders.

Paul Fitzeritzon, chairman of National Sports Limited, promoters of the fight, hinted that Foreman's first defense might be right back here.

"When Foreman signed the contract he said, 'If I win I'd like to make my first defense here,'" said Foreman.

The shock of his stunning upset left Foreman practically speechless immediately after the scheduled 15-round fight and he wasn't able to indicate what might be ahead for him.

"I'd just like to consider what I've done before I think about anything else," he said. "Right now I'd just like to be grateful for what I've done."

Foreman did do a job on Frazier. Eight stitches were sewn into his lip which Foreman ripped with his cement-like fists. Frazier's head absorbed so many heavy blows that the chief physician of Jamaica's Boxing Board suggested that he see a neurologist.

"He seemed in fair enough condition," said Dr. Stuart Gray after examining the battered Frazier after the fight. "naturally, he's a little downhearted, and I feel in view of the type blows he took, he should check further."

Frazier was to see Dr. John Hall in the morning to check and see if he had suffered any serious head damage.

A loser for the first time in 30 pro fights, Frazier took the defeat gracefully but vowed he would be back. "I've got a score to settle," he said. "I'll be back and that's a promise."

Yank Durham, the former champion's manager, agreed with his beaten fighter. "I saw nothing to suggest he should retire," said Durham.

It would seem, though, that Frazier's days in the ring are near an end. Since his own win over Ali almost two years ago, his health has been questioned, and from the battering he took against Foreman, there is reason to believe that Frazier would be a lot better off singing with his band.

Foreman, meanwhile, begins his reign as champion and with the devastating punching power he showed last night, figures to be around quite a while.

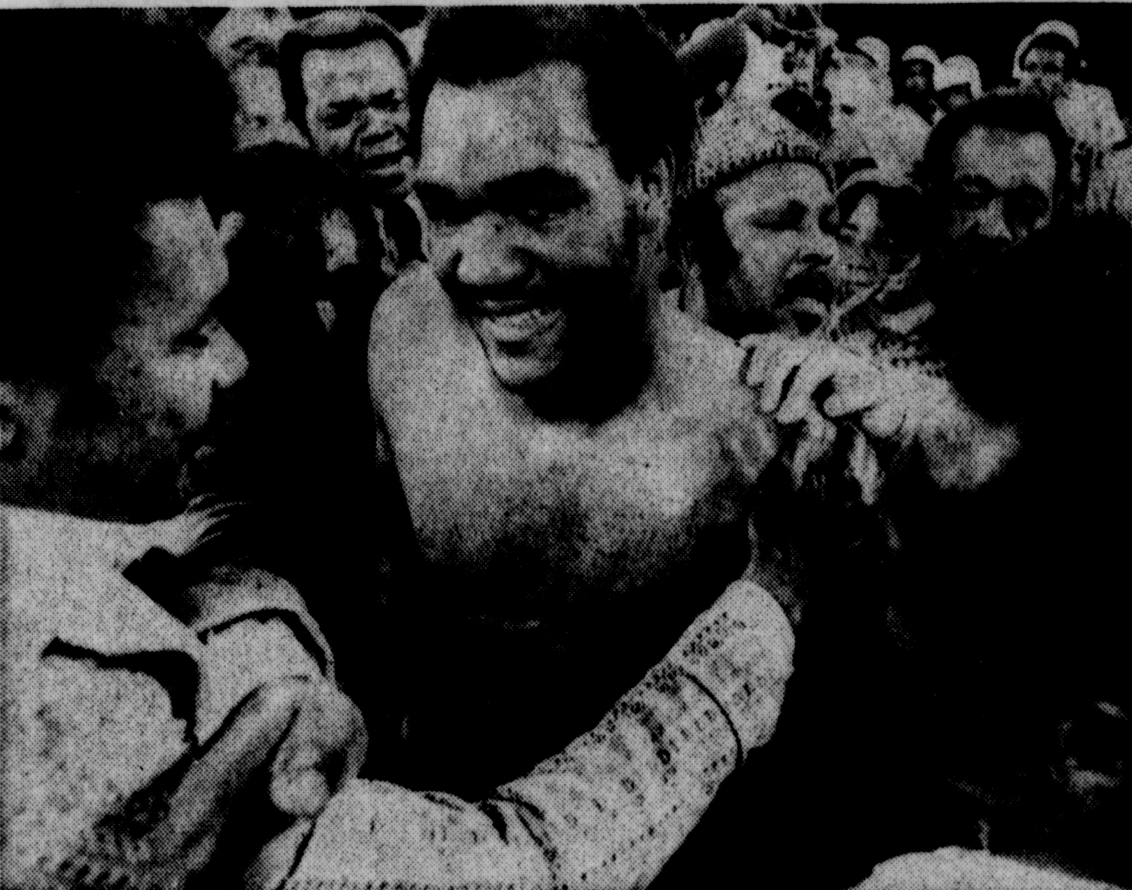

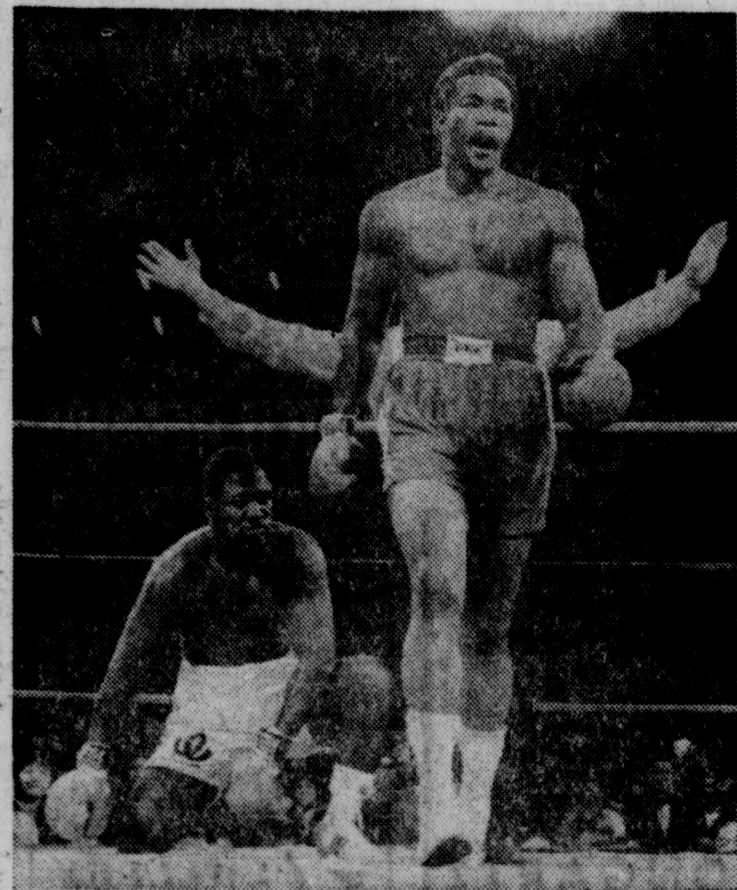

The victory was his 38th straight and 35th knockout.

Only this time his critics can't say he fought "nobody."

Foreman earned $375,000 for the four minutes and 35 seconds he fought while Frazier picked up $850,000 along with his headache.

A crowd estimated at 36,000 witnessed the mismatch and were policed by 1,000 special troops, who were assigned to the stadium after police received threats of sabotage and reports that a bomb might be set off under the ring.

But the only damage done at the National Stadium was to Joe Frazier by George Foreman, the new heavyweight champion of the world.

For Foreman.... Some Reflection

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — Newly crowned heavyweight champion George Foreman simply wants to sit back and reflect on what he's accomplished.

Joe Frazier, like the loser in a high stakes poker game, can only yell, "keep dealing."

"Right now I'd just like to be grateful for what I've done," the 24-year-old Foreman said after lifting the title from Frazier in lightning-like fashion Monday night.

"The hardest thing in life, I think, is to be the heavyweight champion," Foreman added, "and I've done it. God gave me intelligence. I knew I'd walk out of the ring as the champion. I never said before how good I am and I'm not saying how good now."

"I've got a score to settle," Frazier said while dabbing the blood away from a cut on his lower lip which required eight stitches to close. Despite the six knockdowns and the amount of punishment he absorbed before Referee Arthur Mercante stopped the fight at 1:35 of the second round, the cut was the only visible mark on the 29-year-old Frazier's face.

"I'll be back. That's a promise," Frazier told newsmen in his steamy dressing quarters deep inside Jamaica's National Stadium.

Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, repeatedly emphasized a Foreman-Frazier return contract does not exist.

"I see no reason why Joe should retire," an obviously dejected Durham said. "Joe will rest about a month and then we'll try to get another fight with Foreman."

Foreman's manager, Dick Sadler, refused to speculate on his fighter's immediate plans.

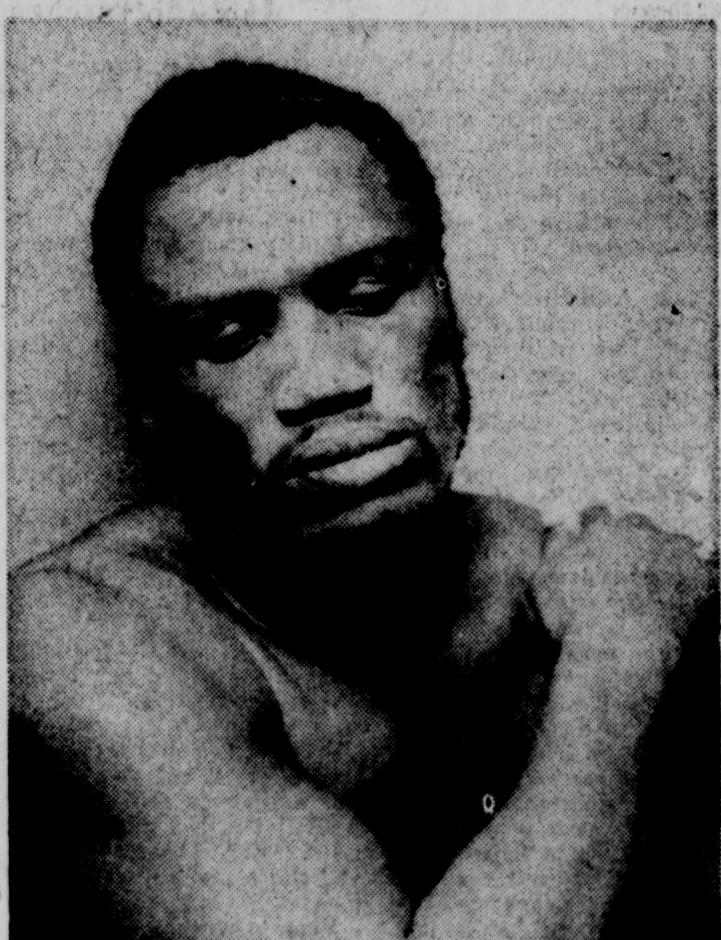

"We have nothing immediate in mind right now," Sadler said. "We just want to enjoy all this."

Foreman was quick to credit his body attack with a great part of his success against Frazier, a 7-to-2 favorite.

"The body punches did it," Foreman said. "I hit him with a right to the body early in the second round. After I saw the way he accepted it, I knew I had him. But I got to do my job."

Foreman claimed before the referee stopped the fight, he yelled at Durham that Frazier was going to get desperate and get hurt.

"He (Frazier) has made a lot of money for his manager and his family. What did they want him to do—get killed?" Foreman asked.

Frazier and Durham Were Alone Now

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — The two of them, Joe Frazier and Yank Durham, his manager, were alone now.

They had come all the way together to the very top of the mountain, and now they were back where they started, at the bottom.

Joe Frazier fingered his lower lip tenderly, the lip in which eight sutures had been taken only a short time ago by Dr. Stewart Gray, and looked over at his manager.

Yank Durham didn't say anything, but Joe Frazier could sense the question in his manager's mind.

"I didn't see it," said the beaten ex-champion, talking of course about that sledgehammer right uppercut of George Foreman's, that terribly devastating blow which preluded the first of six humiliating knockdowns and ultimately resulted in the crowning of a new world heavyweight champion at 1:35 of the second round here Monday night.

"Don't worry about it," Yank Durham tried to comfort his fighter.

This time it was Joe Frazier's turn not to reply.

"They'll give us a return," said Durham. "I'm pretty sure they will."

Joe Frazier had peeled off his soaked boxing trunks by this time and was beginning to put on his white street clothes. Yank Durham decided to leave him alone for a few minutes, tell you why. He lost because he got hit, that's why. Why did Ellis lose to Joe? Why did Quarry lose? Why did Clay lose? They all lost for the same reason Joe lost out there tonight. They got hit, that's all.

Ali Is Woofing Again: I'll Annihilate Him

DEER PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Muhammad Ali said Monday night he would "annihilate" George Foreman, but that a match between him and the new heavyweight champion was at least a year off.

Ali also dismissed a rematch for Joe Frazier, contending that it would be an "embarrassment" for the man who took the title away from Ali.

The former champion was asleep at his training camp here when an aide returned from watching the bout on closed circuit TV in Philadelphia and woke him with the news.

"He told me Frazier came in fat and didn't have the zip," Ali said. "I didn't realize I whupped Joe Frazier so bad."

He was referring to the Ali-Frazier match in which Frazier won the decision but ended up in the hospital.

"I'm not anxious to fight Foreman," Ali said. "I know I would annihilate him."

Ali, who lost his crown for refusing to enter military service, said he was $2.5 million worth of fights lined up. He ticked off the names of Joe Bugner of England, Ron Lyle and Ken Norton.

"I'll make my $2.5 million and then I'll think about Foreman," Ali said. "He may be heavier but he'll be slower."

Jabbar, Barry Out

CHICAGO (UP) — Two starters were knocked out of the West lineup today for the 23rd National Basketball Association All star game—Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Rick Barry of the Golden State Warriors—but the West remained a slight favorite for the classic contest.

The game will be played on the Chicago Bulls' court in the Chicago Stadium tonight before a crowd expected to exceed 18,000 and will be televised nationally over ABC beginning at 8 p.m. CST.

Barry and Abdul-Jabbar, named to the starting West lineup by vote of media personnel in every city in the league, were replaced on Los Angeles Lakers' Coach Bill Sharman's roster by Connie Hawkins of the Phoenix Suns and Bob Love of the Bulls.

Barry had to be scratched from the lineup because of a severely sprained ankle suffered in Sunday's game against Milwaukee, and Abdul-Jabbar

Only Unitas Knows the Secret

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts are sending quarterback John Unitas' contract to the San Diego Chargers—but only Unitas knows if he will go cross-country with it.

Unitas, contacted Monday after Colts' General Manager Joe Thomas announced he was trading him to the Chargers, said, "It doesn't mean I'll be going to the West Coast. For one thing, I don't know if it is legal. I'll just have to sit down and look at things and then talk with the San Diego people."

In Tallahassee, Fla., where he was to speak at a football dinner, the disgruntled football great said he will keep his home in Baltimore no matter where he plays.

"Playing six months a year for a distant city is one of the concerns in deciding whether to go," he said.

"I've got a lot of things to be concerned about—my family, my business interests in Baltimore and Orlando. I don't know if I want to be that far away for a six-month period."

Thomas, who ordered the 17-year quarterbacking legend benched after the first five games of last season in favor of Marty Domres, said "the Chargers will assume only Unitas' standard player contract and the Colts will, of course, meet all future obligations accrued by Johnny Unitas during his playing career with the Colts."

The obligations apparently include a $1-million, 10-year personal services contract when Unitas quits playing football. Thomas said the quarterback, who swore he would not play next season for Baltimore after he was benched, was traded for "a future consideration."

Thomas refused to expand on the statement except to say that "no other players or draft choices were involved in the agreement."

Unitas threw more than 22 miles of completed passes in his 17 years as a Colt, worth 287 touchdowns, three world championships and nine National Football League division crowns.

Thomas benched him at virtually the same time he sacked Coach Don McCafferty and promoted Defensive Coach John Sandusky to the head spot. Sandusky was fired a few days before Christmas, along with the rest of the coaching staff. None of them have been replaced.

Charger Coach Harland Sware said the team was "honored and proud to acquire John Unitas, the greatest quarterback ever to play the game."

Many LBJ Programs Phased Out

'Great Society' Dismantling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society social programs are being dismantled at the time of his death, victims of a budget squeeze and his successors' different approach to domestic problems.

Model Cities, urban renewal, housing subsidies and manpower training are among the Johnson-era programs falling before President Nixon's budget ax.

But other major legislative accomplishments of Johnson's term—especially Medicare and antidiscrimination laws—will long endure.

Three factors have prompted Nixon's moves to phase out or sharply curtail Great Society social-spending programs.

First is their steadily rising costs. Nixon wants to hold federal spending this fiscal year to $250 billion, and next fiscal year to about $270 billion. To do this mandates sharp cuts in big-ticket programs.

Second is the fact that Nixon and many of his key advisors hold that many Great Society programs are, as White House aide John Ehrlichman put it, "inherently unworkable."

Third is Nixon's view that revenue sharing is a better way to attack major social ills.

In the past month, a number of Great Society programs have been hit by a series of cutbacks, freezes and fund im-

For example, an 18-month moratorium has been placed on all new commitments for federal housing-subsidy programs for low- and middle-income families, a federal-aid system established by legislation Johnson initiated.

Likewise, a freeze has been imposed on new financing for Model Cities and urban renewal, as well as for manpower training programs.

In addition to the temporary measures applying to current fiscal-year spending, administration sources are predicting cuts of up to 50 per cent in programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development—another Johnson legacy—when Nixon sends his fiscal 1974 budget to Congress next week.

Nixon's previous budgets have curtailed operations of the poverty-fighting Office of Economic Opportunity. Some major OEO programs, such as Head Start, have been shifted to other agencies or eliminated completely.

Of all the social programs Johnson pushed through Congress—perhaps the most enduring has been Medicare, the system of medical care for the aged financed through Social Security.

Medicare was first proposed by President John F. Kennedy, but Kennedy couldn't get it through Congress. Johnson did.

Praise From His Critics

By United Press International

In the years of his troubled presidency, Lyndon B. Johnson often was at odds with Richard Nixon, Barry Goldwater, Eugene McCarthy and Edward Kennedy. But they joined in praising him at his death.

"He believed in America . . . in what American could mean to all of its citizens and what American could mean to the world," said President Nixon.

McCarthy, who was pushed by his bitterness over the war in 1968 to run against a president of his own party, said Johnson was "a dedicated servant of our country."

Goldwater praised his opponent in the 1964 presidential race, saying, "I have lost a friend—the memory of whose friendship I will ever cherish."

"He was a loyal vice president and had the respect and affection of John Kennedy," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Running through the reaction of the men Johnson worked with and against during his administration, was the same theme: Except for the war, Johnson was a great president.

Edmund G. Brown, the former California governor who placed Johnson's name in nomination at the 1964 convention, said he regarded Johnson "as one of our great presidents. Unfortunately, his great works in civil rights and human rights were overshadowed by the Vietnam War."

Gen. William Westmoreland, commander of the U.S. forces in Vietnam under Johnson, said, "I believe history will record he performed his demanding duties most admirably."

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., put aside his discontent over Johnson's escalation of the war to declare that the former president "did more to advance public support for education and civil justice than any other president in our national history."

Justice Thurgood Marshall, Johnson's selection and the only black to sit on the Supreme Court, said Johnson believed in the equality of man. "He did not just mouth the words—unlike many others in high office—he put them into action with all his personal vigor and with the full authority of his office."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said the man he served four years as vice president "was a strong man who cared for the weak and the sick."

Civil rights leaders Bayard Rustin and A. Phillip Randolph said, "With the exception of Lincoln, who freed the slaves, no single president contributed as much to the cause of racial equality."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said, "His responsibility in the Vietnam War will be better understood, especially by those who differed with him, as an intense loyalty, according to his lights, to the principle of self-determination of peoples. The congressmen who worked with Johnson when he was one of them praised his legislative abilities and their years of friendship with him.

"He wasn't always right and I didn't always agree with him," said Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., "but for getting things done up until a year before his term expired, he had no superior."

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., and Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., were in Congress when Johnson came to Washington at the start of the New Deal.

"Lyndon Johnson was dashing in those early years. You could sense he was ambitious," Randolph recalled.

"He was a brilliant legislator in both the House and Senate," said Patman. "And from the start, he put country ahead of all other considerations."

Speaker Carl Albert, notified at his Capitol office of Johnson's death, said, "I have never been closer to anyone in higher political office in my life. I have lost a very dear friend."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said, "He believed in everything he did and what he did, he did with his utmost energy."

Johnson's successor as Democratic leader, Sen. Mike Mansfield, said, "He was the greatest president in the area of social and domestic reform this country has ever known. The Great Society will be his monument to history."

His Press Secretary, George Christian, said Johnson would be remembered for his "love of people." And W. Averell Harriman, U.S. Ambassador at the opening of the Paris peace talks in 1968, said his greatness was in the "improvements of social conditions in this country."

Great Politician But...

By United Press International

World leaders agreed today that Lyndon B. Johnson was a great politician and an architect of historic reforms but a president plagued by a war he could not end.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said he was "deeply saddened" to learn of Johnson's death.

The Daily Mirror of London called him "the most tragic politician of our time."

"President Johnson involved his country more deeply in the Vietnam War than any other president," said Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam. "He was, in a real sense, a victim of this disastrous conflict." But he praised Johnson's domestic policies.

In Moscow, the official news agency Tass reported Johnson's death in a one-paragraph dispatch from New York six hours after the news was first announced.

In Jerusalem, the Israeli national radio eulogized Johnson as a "great friend of Israel" because he supplied the Jewish state with warplanes and supported it during the 1967 Middle East war. "And in 1968," it said, "when the late Prime Minister Levi Eshkol visited the White House for a second time, Mr. Johnson decided to send Phantom warplanes to Israel."

In Saigon, Former South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said the death of Johnson "brings me bewilderment, shock and regrets."

"I still have profound sympathy and special respect for President Johnson, a man who always put aside his personal interests for those of the common interest," said Ky. "He demonstrated his determination and will and that of the American people to protect freedom and democracy and proved to the Communists that they cannot spread the war."

"The death of President Johnson robs the world of one of its most distinguished postwar leaders," said Philippines Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo. "He brought to the presidential office the skill of bargaining and compromise on behalf of domestic social legislation and of world peace."

Sen. George S. McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee who is visiting Britain, said, "Lyndon Johnson did more to advance public support for education and civil justice than any other president in American history. His public career was marked by a consistent sense of compassion for his fellow citizens."

Premier Kakuei Tanaka's Japanese government offered "deep sympathy" and said Johnson "exerted his utmost efforts to ensure world peace."

'Blue Law' Aftermath In Woodstock

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA
WOODSTOCK

After the two-man foot patrol of Chief Constable William Waterous and Constable Ross VanWagenen had checked out 35 Woodstock stores Sunday in a crackdown on the state's "Blue Law" violations, the final tally read:

Ten stores which had been given prior warning were issued a summons to appear Friday night before a town justice; 15 stores were given a first warning that if they were open next week and selling prohibited items, they will be cited similarly; 10 stores which were known to have been open previously on the Sabbath were found locked and closed.

What Chief Waterous had done on his tour (while jovially complaining that, "I'm going to spend the next 15 years in court") had been to follow Ulster County District Attorney Francis J. Vogt's instructions as he saw them. Going to every open store; using his own discretion in what Vogt felt was a "discretionary thing." Where shops had shown an effort to negate the sale of certain items, they were left alone. But where obvious purchases were being made, where mockery and flagrant violations were in evidence, a summons was issued.

But Woodstock's announced "War on the Blue Law" is still far from over. Many shopkeepers will continue to stay open on future Sundays to fight the law and protest it that way. This will mean more Sunday tramping for the local constabulary, as well as a mound of paper work. And it will mean increased work for local town justices who will have to decide on the merits of each individual case as it arises.

It will also mean that DA Vogt will have to come up with some hard and clear decisions. The big question seems to be: what is a souvenir? Followed by, what is a necessity? Already Waterous, in preparation for next Sunday's trek, has asked Vogt for further clarification on such items as lighter fluid, combs, cosmetics, film, flashlights, pipes, candles, candle molds, and many more, such as shampoo, canned foods, pints, some clothing.

And what of the many real estate offices Waterous found open Sunday, busily attempting to sell houses, cottages, apartments and land? He jotted down a reminder to quiz Vogt on them.

And, if the Woodstock blue law enforcement is only the latest test of the state's controversial Sabbath regulations, how will Vogt proceed countywide?

The district attorney's office can, if the threat of fines does not deter merchants, order any items sold in violation of the law "entirely confiscated" from stores. The promise to do just that worked to Vogt's advantage last spring in Woodstock when both the Grand Union and A & P supermarkets attempted to stay open Sundays. That case had stemmed from a complaint by Russell Roefs, owner of the Corner Cupboard Delicatessen.

Special

Similar procedures may well have to be the trend in the months ahead. Vogt, speaking before the new Woodstock Merchants Association last week, hinted that he was not personally opposed to a valid test case in the county. But both he and constabularies in every town know it will take a lot of police manpower to enforce the law countywide.

It may well be that future action against shopowners will only be taken by official complaint from people who have actually shopped or purchased items on Sunday, and who must file individual and personal charges against individual merchants to have the case handled by authorities. In the long run, it may all boil down to the fact that law enforcement agencies do not have enough men or trucks at their disposal to back up to stores all over the county and cart away confiscated goods. In Woodstock alone, close to 50 of the town's 100 or more businesses are usually open Sunday, posing a tremendous manpower problem in only one place. And there is the known fact, too, that few people enjoy making personal complaints. At this writing, none of the 23 Woodstock shops cited by authorities knows who has lodged the complaints against them—but they will insist on that accusatory information Friday night in court.

Family Court Judge.... Field of Candidates Widens

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

The field of possible candidates for Family Court Judge is widening with three more names added to the list of those either interested in or being considered for the nomination—Democrat City Judge Hubert A. Richter, former Republican Election Commissioner Seymour Werbalowsky and former Republican City Judge Joseph D. Saccaman.

All three men have handled or have been involved in numerous cases that have come before Family Court in recent years.

Sunday the Freeman reported the candidacy of the GOP incumbent Judge Hugh Elwyn and of interest in four other possible Republican candidates including District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, Ulster Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis and attorneys Richard Griggs and John J. Lynch.

Both Republican and Democrat candidates for the $31,500 ten-year post will be selected at party conventions to be held sometime in March. No date has yet been selected.

Judge Richter was first elected city judge in 1965. He was one of the first judges in the state to use weekend jail sentences to keep men working to support their families and still pay for their misdeeds.

A native of Kingston, he attended St. Lawrence University, Illinois Institute of Technology and graduated from Albany Law School in 1950. He is a member of the law firm of Richter and Werbalowsky, served as a judge in the Young American Awards Program and is a life member and former commander of the Joyce Shirick Post 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars. He also holds membership in the American Legion and Lions Club.

Werbalowsky, his law partner, recently served as chairman of the statewide campaign to elect three Republican candidates to the New York State Court of Appeals. A graduate of Pennsylvania State University, he received his LL.B. and J.D. degrees from Albany Law School.

A director of Gateway Industries, he was chairman in 1970 of the professional division of the United Jewish Welfare Fund and is a past president of the Kingston Jewish Community Center, Jewish Community Council, Ulster County Pan Association, Hudson Valley Council B'nai B'rith and a past commander of the Kingston Post 150, American Legion.

Saccaman was elected City Court Judge in 1961 and was named the Junior Chamber of Commerce's Outstanding Young Man that same year.

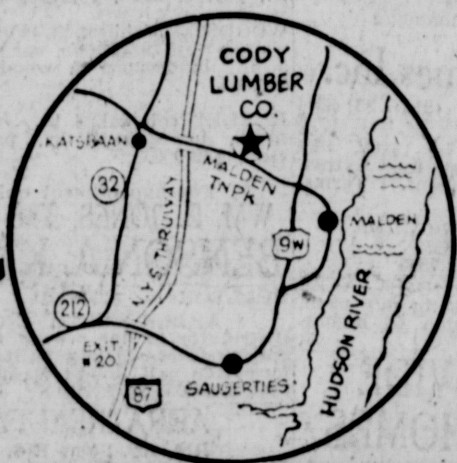

A former city coordinator for the campaign of Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, Saccaman is a past president of the Ulster County Bar Association and served as a director and vice president of the Ulster County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

A graduate of Kingston High School, he attended Fordham University and graduated from Fordham Law School in 1951.

He was administrator for the Assigned Council Plan, a confidential clerk to the Ulster County Judge and a member of the College Council of the State University at New Paltz. County Democratic Chairman James T. McCordle said today county treasurer, district attorney and coroner.

Republican County Chairman Albert Spada said that Judge Elwyn is seeking reelection but that others have also expressed interest in the post and that the candidate will be selected at the March GOP convention.

Power Co. Complaints: PSC Report Shows Hike

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Complaints about telephone service in New York State have declined greatly in recent years, but complaints against electric power companies are increasing, the state Public Service Commission says.

Consumers lodged 50,975 complaints with the PSC during 1972, the agency said Monday. Out of those, 23,486 complaints were against electric companies, and 19,873 were against telephone companies.

In 1970, by contrast, the PSC received 40,870 complaints against telephone companies, and 8,722 against electric power companies.

The 1972 complaint total includes 7,991 complaints about gas service and 625 complaints against water companies.

The complaints against the electric companies dealt with billing rather than service by a ratio of 9 to 1, while the complaints about telephone companies were split about evenly between billing and service.

The figures released Monday by the PSC also indicate that complaints are still much more common in the New York City metropolitan area than in upstate. In 1972, there were 20,970 complaints against power companies downstate, and 2,516 upstate. Telephone complaints numbered 17,806, downstate, and 2,067 upstate.

Because the PSC usually receives complaints only after the customer has been unable to settle with the utility involved, the PSC said, the complaints reflect both the quality of service "and the responsiveness of the utility to customer inquiries."

Leary told newsmen he had been "hijacked by a totalitarian government" from Kabul, where he was sighted by a U.S. narcotics agent.

California courts have no authority over Leary because he was "kidnaped from Afghanistan in violation of the law," said Leary's lawyer, George Chula.

Leary appeared for arraignment and requested permission to act as his own lawyer. Superior Court Judge James Turner denied the request, ruling it "premature," and continued the arraignment to Jan. 30.

Leary has been indicted here on 19 counts of conspiracy and smuggling as the alleged mastermind behind the "Brotherhood of Eternal Love," of which Leary was one of the founders.

Narcotics investigators described the brotherhood as a ring of drug dealers responsible for production of millions of LSD tablets and for a smuggling operation that brought 1,000 pounds of hashish a month into the United States.

Leary also is liable to state and federal charges in connection with his escape, and completion of the original 1-to-10 year marijuana possession term he was serving when he fled.

IBM Files $25 Million Counterclaim

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — International Business Machines Corp. Monday filed a $25 million counterclaim in Federal Court against Telex Corp. of Albany, charging Telex with obtaining IBM trade secrets and infringing its technical publication copyrights.

Telex has an antitrust suit against IBM scheduled to go to trial in April.

Last week, Telex filed a motion in Federal Court in St. Paul, Minn., seeking to set aside the recently announced settlement of the antitrust litigation between IBM and Control Data Corp. of Minneapolis.

In this motion, Telex alleged that IBM and Control Data acted in concert in the settlement to destroy a computerized index tape to documentary evidence important both to Telex and to the Justice Department, which also has an antitrust suit pending against IBM.

In the action filed Monday, IBM said it was detailing the counterclaims it projected in a pre-trial conference last March.

Mayor Koenig, City Treasurer in Albany

KINGSTON

Mayor Francis R. Koenig and City Treasurer Thomas R. Lyle are in Albany today attending a workshop in fundamental labor relations sponsored by State Civil Service Department.

The workshop will cover the latest developments in the Taylor Law which lays down guidelines for negotiations between municipalities and their employees.

Koenig pointed out that contracts with some 250 city employees in the police department, fire department and department of public works will be negotiated this year.

Lyle, also president of the Water Board, has negotiated contracts in the water department on several occasions.

Koenig and Lyle will complete the two-day workshop on Wednesday afternoon.

'Crackdown' in Ellenville

ELLENVILLE

The Ellenville Village Police Department has begun a "crackdown" on what it terms the "illegal activities" of bars and taverns in the village.

Their investigations have led to two recent arrests.

On Friday, 33-year-old Grover Quick, manager-bartender of Mary's Bar at 72 Center Street was charged with two violations of the Alcoholic Beverage Commission Law. On Saturday, 51-year-old James Byrnes, a bartender at Monahan's Bar, was arrested for allegedly selling an alcoholic beverage to a minor.

According to Sgt. John Corwin, police arrested Quick at 10 p.m. Saturday for the illegal employment of a felon. Corwin explained that Quick was once convicted of a felony, and that as manager-bartender of the establishment, he is employing himself. As a result, he was charged with the violation.

Quick also was charged with the sale of alcoholic beverages to an intoxicated person.

Quick was released on $50 bail, and will appear for preliminary hearing tonight before Village Justice Ronald Elias.

Byrnes, according to police, allegedly sold a bottle of beer to a 17-year-old minor on Jan. 1 of this year at the establishment on Main Street. Police said they obtained a signed statement from the youth, which led to the arrest.

Byrnes was released on $100 bail pending a preliminary hearing tonight.

Sgt. Corwin said village police are aware of numerous violations of the ABC Law in the village, and will continue their investigations, with patrol and detective divisions scheduled to make nightly checks of all bars in the village.

The Hudson Valley Depression Glass Club will meet Jan. 25 at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall, Main Street, Walden. The pattern Cherry Blossom will be discussed and an auction for members will be held. Mickey Meier, Westwood Drive, Walden, may be contacted for further information.

State Dem Position For Dyson

ALBANY
John S. Dyson, former Democratic congressional candidate who opposed Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. in the 1968 election, has been appointed chairman of the Democratic State Advisory Council, according to announcement today by New York State Democratic Chairman Joseph F. Crangle.
As chairman of the policy-making body for the New York State Democrats, Dyson succeeds such men as Arthur Goldberg, Howard Samuels, Eugene Nickerson and more recently, Albert Blumenthal.

Dyson, 29, of Millbrook who is president of Dyner Communications, publisher of a dozen weekly newspapers in New York State, will work in cooperation with former Gov. Averell Harriman, who will serve as honorary chairman of the council. Dyson will be assisted by Mrs. Carol Haussaman of New York, who will serve as vice chairman.
Crangle, in announcing Dyson's appointment, said that he is "an energetic young man with formidable practical ability and the progressive vision necessary for the job of heading the policy council."

Dyson explained that the council membership is in formation and will be announced shortly and that he wants the council to include "the broad range of Democrats — rank and file party members, as well as distinguished public officials."
Crangle said he hoped the council will function as a collection of smaller task forces on specific issues. "Policy formation is important enough to receive the concentrated attention of knowledgeable people," he said. "John and Carol will be able to give the steady attention to the whole council that will be necessary to its working in this way."

Dyson said that one of the first projects under consideration will be a series of listening sessions for the public and officials to discuss the question of court reform.
Formerly chairman of the Rural Affairs Committee of the Council, Dyson resides with his wife and daughter in Dutchess County and was a member of the Policy Council of the Democratic Committee.

He received his BS degree with distinction in economics from Cornell University and his masters in public affairs from the Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton University. He served as a lieutenant in the U.S. Army Intelligence, including one year in Saigon as Vietnam Political Desk Officer.
He is the author of Our Historic Hudson.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

Tues., Jan. 22 - Jean Adams -

SECOND DATE. (Q.) On our second date this boy took me parking and got fresh. I refused to do anything with him. So we went and got a cold drink and then he took me parking again.

He didn't do much that time but I got very excited and told him I loved him. I made him tell me he loved me, but he didn't sound like he meant it.

That was five months ago and he hasn't asked me out again. He goes out with other girls who give him what he wants. I am sure he likes me, even if he doesn't love me, and would take me out if I would do what he wants me to do.

How can I get him to take me out without doing that? I like him so much. —Wanda in West Virginia.

(A.) This boy and you are interested in two different things. I believe that when you told him you loved him he realized you were not his kind of girl and marked you off his list.

I congratulate you on not being his kind of girl. But I must warn you that, it would be foolish to try to get back on his list.

Don't try. Look elsewhere—for your kind of boy. LETTERS: (Q.) There is this kid in my class who keeps writing mushy letters to me. They are so dumb they are funny. My friends and I answer them back as a joke.

No one has told him that I don't like him. He thinks he's Mr. Wonderful, but he's so fat!—Pestered in Pennsylvania.

(A.) You are doing this boy an injustice! Making a joke of anyone who admires you is cruel. It is your job, not someone else's to tell him how you feel about him. Be honest and tell him you don't like him. But don't play jokes on him anymore.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions or comments to Jean Adams, care of The Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.)

Rick Du Brow

Liz and Dick in TV Drama

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Hopkins and, says the network, publicized appearance of Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton in a two-part ABC-TV drama about a broken marriage seen differently through the eyes of the husband and wife will be broadcast Feb. 6 and 7.

ABC-TV will use two of its prime showcases, the astutely scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday movies of the week—series that offer 90-minute teleplays—for the pair of Burton-Taylor dramas, entitled "Divorce, His; Divorce, Hers."

And though most big names from movies are no guarantee of good ratings in video shows (except maybe for John Wayne), Burton and Taylor are, like George C. Scott, examples of how many stars now interweave their motion picture and television projects.

"Divorce, His; Divorce, Hers" was written by John

U.S. Jets Stage Heavy Air Strikes in Support of South Viets

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. jets flew their heaviest strikes in five months today in support of South Vietnamese forces while North Vietnam accused the allies of "stepping up the war and terror in South Vietnam."

The jets, U.S. military authorities said, flew 374 one-plane strikes in South Vietnam. This was one fewer than the 375 sorties flown Aug. 22.

B52 bombers, authorities said, flew about another 27 missions of three planes each.

Meanwhile, North Vietnam's official Vietnam News Agency quoted the Communist newspaper Nhan Dan as calling for the "checking of the hands of the war maniacs, who are stepping up the war and terror in South Vietnam."

"The Saigon army, with the support of U.S. air and naval forces, have made one nibbling attack after another on the liberated zone in the past few months."

In North Vietnamese terminology, "liberated zone" refers to Communist-held territory in South Vietnam, particularly territory overrun since last year's Easter Offensive.

With a cease-fire reportedly fast approaching, South Vietnam's second city, Da Nang, went on alert today as part of a reported nationwide move to thwart any Communist territorial grab ahead of a truce. Security guards at the big allied air base put on helmets and flak jackets.

A "gray" alert was on for the 5,000 American servicemen in the Da Nang area, most of them stationed on the base. No traveling in town was permitted except on business, UPI Correspondent Alan Dawson reported.

Dawson said there were unconfirmed reports that Da Nang, a city of 472,000, might be subjected to a 24-hour "practice" curfew in preparation for a cease-fire.

There have been widespread reports, so far without any official announcements, that most South Vietnamese cities will go on round-the-clock curfew for the first few days of any cease-fire, the better for government forces to stop any infiltration of Communist troops into government-held territory.

One sign that a cease-fire was not imminent was that although fighting has stepped up this week there has as yet been no all-out surge by both sides. The theory is that they will try to seize as much territory as possible just before there will be no time for a cease-fire takes effect so counterattacks.

In six clashes Monday around

Quang Tri City, South Vietnamese paratroops reported killing 64 North Vietnamese soldiers at a cost of three killed and five wounded.

In the Saigona area a Viet Cong unit tried to infiltrate a hamlet 16 miles from the capital Monday night. Government militiamen intercepted the Communists and killed one of them. One militiaman also died in the skirmish, military sources said.

church's Regina Pacis Votive Shrine, were recovered from a coin locker in a public lobby of the East Side Air Terminal. A phone call from an unidentified, gruff-voiced male to the New York FBI offices was the tipoff to the location of the jewels. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Catholics Deplore Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic church leaders have deplored the Supreme Court decision guaranteeing American women the right to have medical abortions during the first six months of pregnancy.

Otherwise, there was mixed reaction to the court's 7-2 ruling Monday that the states may interfere with this "right of privacy" only in about the last three months of pregnancy, when the unborn child is developed enough to live outside the mother.

John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia, the highest-ranking Catholic prelate in the United States, called the decision "an unspeakable tragedy" and said "it is hard to think of any decision in the 200 years of our history which has had more disastrous implications for our stability as a civilized society."

Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle of Washington, D.C., called the decision a catastrophe for America. "It is a shocking display of a few men arrogating to themselves the judgment at what stage the life of an unborn child may be terminated," he said.

Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma said the issue is one for state legislatures. "I deeply regret this additional intrusion by the federal government into matters the state should resolve," he said.

On the other hand, the leading proponent of liberalized abortions in the California legislature said the decision makes "abortion on request" by a 7-2 vote provisions of a Georgia law. These required advance approval of a hospital committee and concurrence of two additional physicians before a woman could have an abortion recommended by her doctor.

Thirty other states have laws similar to the Texas statute. Thirteen additional states have laws like Georgia's. Since the handful of remaining states already permitted medical abortions virtually upon demand, the ruling will have nationwide impact.

The court's majority opinion, by Justice Harry A. Blackmun, rested largely on the "right of privacy" and the medical view that in the early stages of pregnancy an abortion is no more of a risk than birth itself.

Guilty Four Seek Reduced Bail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four men who pleaded guilty to burglarizing Democratic National Committee headquarters asked federal District Court Judge John J. Sirica today to reduce their bail of $100,000 each to permit them to go free until they are sentenced.

Sirica ordered Bernard L. Barker, Frank A. Sturgis, Virgilio Gonzalez and Eugene R. Martinez jailed after they changed their pleas from innocent to guilty Jan. 15. He indicated he would sentence them at the end of the trial.

The four, plus former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt, pleaded guilty to their part in the break-in and bugging of Democratic headquarters last June 17.

That left only two men on trial—James W. McCord Jr., former security chief for the committee to re-elect President Nixon, and G. Gordon Liddy, Nixon campaign. They are charged with conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping at the headquarters.

Hunt is free on bond.

Lawyers for McCord and Liddy spent much of Monday trying to discredit testimony by the star prosecution witness, ex-FBI agent Alfred C. Baldwin. Baldwin testified he thought his political espionage work for President Nixon's re-election campaign — eavesdropping on some 200 Democratic phone calls — was legal.

Baldwin said he had been asked by McCord to do the monitoring from a motel room across the street from Democratic headquarters and felt that was within the law.

Six Dead... Man, Five Victims

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI)—A 29-year-old man went berserk Monday night, storming through a dingy riverfront neighborhood killing his boarding house landlady and four other persons with shotgun blasts. The police said they may never know why he did it.

Police said he became the sixth victim of the melee when he broke into a home, sat down on a couch, turned the 16-gauge shotgun to his head and pulled the trigger.

The victims included the 55-year-old landlady, her daughter, an elderly man thought to be another boarder, and a woman who was watching television in a nearby home. Four hours after the incident police found the unidentified body of the fifth victim in a closet of a nearby home.

Police said all the victims were black, including the gunman. He was identified as Ronald G. Jordan, believed to be from Denver.

Officers could not explain why the shooting spree occurred. They said the only witness was seriously injured by shotgun pellets in the face.

Alexandros Onassis 'Clinically Dead'

ATHENS (UPI) — A hospital director said today that Alexandros Onassis, only son and heir of Greek shipping tycoon Aristotle Onassis, lay clinically dead although his heart was still beating following multiple head injuries he received in a plane crash Monday.

"His brain is dead but his heart is still beating," Gen. Petros Dantas, general director of KAT hospital where Onassis was taken, told newsmen.

Earlier, an Olympic Airways spokesman had said: "It's all finished, he is dead."

The young man's mother, the former Tina Livanos, and his father and stepmother, the former Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, who spent the morning around his bedside, were seen leaving the hospital.
